Boris Godunov died in 1605. A national revolt, strongest in the south, rallied to a pretender (a false Dmitri) who succeeded in getting himself elected tsar. There followed 8 yrs of civil war. Sweden & Poland intervened, and the boyars, hoping to use foreign rule to prosper their own fortunes, elected him to the Polish Crown, VLADISLAV, as tsar of Russia. That was a signal for a new revolt, led by the patriarch, a great people's army relieved Moscow of the foreigners and drove out the Poles. A national assembly then elected a new tsar, the great-nephew of Ivan IV, MIKHAIL, and the Romanov dynasty (which lasted until 1918) was founded.
